

FEMME- WAVE

FemmeWave explores the resurgence of hyper-feminine aesthetics within contemporary fashion. Through trend research, the project examined the renewed popularity of materials, colours, and details traditionally associated with femininity—including satin, lace, bows, pearls, and shades of pink—and translated these findings into a collection of customised footwear.

Working with discarded shoes, the project combines trend forecasting with circular design, giving existing products a new identity while exploring how contemporary fashion can reclaim and reinterpret hyper-feminine visual language.
